

Protective Factors: Strategies to Strengthen Families

April 2023

2 Children thrive on routine and love to be part of family traditions. Honor a tradition or start one of your own.	3 Model resilience for your child. When faced with a challenge, remind yourself and your child, it is temporary.	4 Positive words of affirmation change the people who hear them and the people who say them. Share positive words today.	5 Offer assistance or even a smile to a parent who has his/her hands full.	6 Recognize your own triggers, those that make you lose your patience or make you angry. Take time to breathe or be in the moment.	7 Play a game when in the car or traveling – a game or travel bingo make the ride fun!	1 Being a parent/caregiver is hard. Be brave, get help. 9 Listening to and validation of what a parent is feeling or going through is a huge stress relief. Be a good listener today.	10 Help your child by teaching them to help others.	11 Read to your child every single day.	12 Give another caregiver time by offering to take care of their child.	13 Make something with your child. Arts and crafts are fun for adults, too.	14 Be active in your children's events...put your phone away!	8 Dial 2-1-1 (3-1-1 in NYC) to find out about organizations that support families in your area.
16 Children learn new skills all the time. Learn what to expect at https://www.cdc.gov/ncbddd/actearly/index.html	17 Use words that help, not hurt. You are a mirror for your children. They believe what you say about them.	18 Tell a parent something positive and specific about their child.	19 Teach children how to name their feelings. Help them talk about what it feels like in their body.	20 Seek the help or advice of a grandparent or someone in your community who has, "been there, done that."	21 Join a club, project, or team with your child.	15 Be there for someone today.
23 Remember, your child is not giving you a hard time, they are having a hard time. Be their helper today.	24 Start a garden with your children. Plant some flowers or vegetables together. Water and watch them grow.	25 Celebrate those in your community or in your life who help lighten the load and share in the care of your children.	26 Tune out those who you feel are judging you and focus on what you child needs from you to cope and feel supported.	27 Take a walk and talk with your child(ren), partner, a friend, or another parent.	28 Take a few deep, cleansing breaths, and sit quietly - noticing how you feel.	22 Take time for yourself today, even if it is just a long, hot shower.
30 Play catch or have a dance party with your child. Important conversations can happen in these shared moments.						29 Pick a day/time to have dinner as a family at least once a week. Family dinners build resilience in children.

Building protective factors is a good way to develop your strong family:

- Nurturing and attachment
- Knowledge of parenting and child development
- Parents' resilience
- Supports for parents when needed
- Healthy social and emotional development
- Social connections
